

THE BORING STUFF MATTERS.

A House Has to Work on an Ordinary Tuesday, Too.

You can love a house and still hate living there if the everyday stuff around it doesn't fit your life.

Commute routes, school traffic, grocery and service access, neighborhood circulation, noise, and daily routines all play a role in how a home actually works.

A home can feel perfect on a quick showing, but it's the ordinary days and regular routines that shape your experience long after you move in.

Before you decide, take a closer look at the property and what surrounds it. Understanding how the neighborhood functions is part of good due diligence and can help you make a more informed decision about the place you call home.

WHAT TO CHECK FOR IN EVERYDAY LIFE

A HOMEBUYER CHECKLIST

- ☐ Commute routes and travel times during normal hours.
- ☐ School traffic, drop-off and pickup patterns.
- ☐ Grocery stores, services and daily errands nearby.
- ☐ Neighborhood circulation, noise levels and how the area functions day to day.

ROADSIDE OBSERVATION

A home's everyday livability is often determined by things buyers overlook.

The same neighborhood can feel very different at 7:30 a.m. on a school day than it does on a quiet Sunday afternoon.

EXPERIENCE THE ROUTINE

Before you decide, see the neighborhood during the times that matter to you.

Drive the routes, visit at different times of day, and get a feel for how the area actually works with your daily life.
